

Humanizing the Immigrant Experience: A Community Conversation with Yosimar Reyes

Tuesday, October 21, 2025

12:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M.

Anaheim Campus
(Rooms 105/107)

Yosimar Reyes, a renowned author, social justice advocate, and activist. Mr. Reyes brings a unique perspective to his presentation, as he presented himself as an unapologetic undocumented immigrant, queer poet, author, advocate, and artist. His narrative speaks to the experience of many of our students, who share many similar identities. He helps paint a positive and enriching experience in which our students, families and employee communities are experiencing. Please join him in this in-person community event, we invite all three of our campuses. In addition, given the shared cultural, personal and social identities shared by many of our employees within NOCCCD, this presentation will have elements a professional development opportunity and experience for all of our employee groups.

- The first part will be geared and focused for our students & community.
- The second part will be geared for our employees (ALL employees are invited) as a professional development opportunity.

Keep in mind both sessions will be available for ALL to join!

Snacks/Drinks will be provided
FLEX Credit will be offered (NOCE only)

Faculty: You are welcome to offer extra credit for your students.
